“Tracking has historically served as a means of denying certain students—almost always students of color and children from non-college educated families—access to a rigorous curriculum and ultimately, the opportunity to go to college. Those who uphold tracking as a necessary measure for meeting the needs of students need only examine how those who have been placed on the track to nowhere have fared.”

What is “equity in education”?

How can we ensure that ALL MCPS students receive a high quality education?

What can we do to support and expand equitable MCPS initiatives within neighborhood schools?

To dialogue about these and other issues,
YOU can participate in the following breakout sessions:

Tracking and How it Manifests in MCPS; How to De-Track; Dropout, Night School, and the Students We Are Failing; Language as a Tracking Mechanism; Mobilizing Politically for Equity; and Quality Education as a Civil Right; Among Others...
